SUBJECT: Driver's Testing Station (DTS) Road Performance Test Procedures

1. References:

a. AR 600-55, The Army Driver and Operator Standardization Program (Selection, Training, Testing and Licensing), 31 December 1993.

b. USAREUR Regulation 600-55, Draft, USAREUR Driver and Operator Standardization Program.

2. A vehicle road performance test or check ride may be required before personnel are issued an OF 346. For customers wishing to obtain a license to operate only sedans and station wagons the following procedures apply:

a. Personnel under the age of 25 with less than three years driving experience will be road tested by a qualified road test examiner from the Driver's Testing Station.

b. Personnel under the age of 25 with more than three years driving experience will be given road tested by a qualified road test examiner from the Driver's Testing Station.

c. Personnel age 25 and over are exempt from the road test requirements for sedans and station wagons.

3. A road test is required for all personnel desiring a government license for vehicles other than sedans and station wagons. The basic road test is conducted with a nine-passenger van. All customers are highly encouraged to complete the basic road test in order to give them greater flexibility to perform future missions. This test qualifies personnel to drive all non-tactical vehicles with a size up to and including the nine-passenger van. For vehicles larger than the nine-passenger van, a road test will be given on each individual type of vehicle.
